4. Work Through Agenda
   a. Organizational Exchange & Announcements:

   Jennifer Boyd – Public Health-Dayton & Montgomery County – announced that for Minority Health Month, PHDMC will be hosting an event, “Spring” into Action on Diabetes, on Tuesday, April 10, 10am-2pm at Drew Health Center. Premier Community Health will be offering free diabetes screenings, Eli Lilly is sponsoring a diabetes educator and there will be an aerobics demonstration. Jennifer will send Carla a flyer to distribute to the CAB.

   Deborah Ferguson – Community Action Partnership – announced that for Minority Health Month, CAP is providing a training program for youth leaders on teenage violence issues at the RTA Center, and offering programs for youth and parents on teenage violence at various centers during April. The youth leadership training is open to everyone. Contact CAP for more information. CAP is a co-sponsor of the 2012 CityLinks Neighborhood Conference, “Rebuilding Our Urban Communities.” The conference will be held at the University of Dayton River Campus on April 13, 2012, 8:30am-2:30pm. The event will feature workshops on the topics of community gardening, community engagement, immigrant-friendly neighborhoods, and protecting children. Deborah distributed flyers about the event.

Michelle Randall – GSH Health Ministries – reminded all about the 4th Annual Medical-Spirituality conference, Thursday, April 12, at Sinclair. The conference keynote is Thomas Moore, PhD. Registration is open through March 31. On Friday, March 23 and Saturday, March 24, GSH Health Ministries will be sponsoring a continuing education event, “Faith Community Nursing: Scope and Standards of Practice.” The Saturday event is in Middletown.

Sharon Becker – GSH Health Ministries – asked if anyone was interested in serving on their speakers’ bureau. Persons would be asked to speak at continuing education events for nurses, 2 hours maximum commitment.

Roberta Taylor – Premier Community Health – will be asking Carla to distribute to the CAB a list of preventive services put together by Premier Community Health that are covered with no deductible or co-pay under the Affordable Care Act.

Patty Griswold – East Dayton Health Center – announced that East Dayton will host a six-week program in partnership with the Area Agency on Aging on diabetes management, “Healthy U/Diabetes,” March 28-May 2. Contact Patty for more information.

Bill Spears – WSU Center for Global Health – reported that the RFP for community food access mini-grants was distributed to the community last week. Bill brought additional RFPs for CAB members to give to any interested persons. The mini-grants can be for almost anything to do with food. Email Bill for more copies.

Tianne Lane – Miami Valley Child Development Centers – distributed flyers about upcoming Edison T.O.T.S. Programs for families with children living within a 2 mile radius of Edison School. The parent involvement program is 12 weeks (May 5-Aug 4 or Sep 8-Dec 8).

Gary LeRoy – East Dayton Health Center - announced that Wright State University will be hosting the 12th annual Quest for Community: A Call to Action, on April 18. The event is an annual, statewide event that examines issues of diversity in higher education. The event is free but registration is required.

Shallon Coleman – Abigail’s Journey – announced that for Minority Health Month, Abigail’s Journey will be presenting a workshop on April 27 on alcoholism and drug addiction. She will send a flyer to Carla for distribution to the CAB. On March 17, Normandy United Methodist Church will host an ecumenical conference on human trafficking.

Rosemary Eustace – WSU College of Nursing and Health – would like to establish community partnerships for the placement of nursing students in the community for service learning and academic credit. If anyone is interested in having a nursing student at their site, please contact her.

b. Center for Healthy Communities Report:

Kim Conner distributed the CHC Community Health Advocacy Outreach Program report. The CHC HealthLink and AHEC Region IV presented its first seminar of 2012, “Childhood Obesity: A Growing Challenge,” on March 12. Presenters were Dr. Robert Murray of The Ohio State University, Dr. Sarah Highstein and Leah Sabato of Dayton Children’s Medical Center, and Bruce Barcelo of PHDMC. Fifty-five persons attended. The “Introduction to Community Health Advocacy” course started this week. Fifteen students have registered. The non-credit bearing course is offered spring and fall at no charge. The community health advocates will be involved in several outreach activities in March and April, including the Levin Foundation’s Celebrating Life and Health on Saturday, April 21.

Kate Cauley reported that Wright State HealthLink participation with the Social Security Administration to process disability claims continues, and Good Neighbor House recently received new client modules for WS HealthLink. WS HealthLink is also involved in a national project through Health-e Link to test the efficacy of on-line consent to share health records electronically. Bill and Kate continue in their project funded by ODJFS to identify the emerging and future competencies of the long care direct care workforce. Kate is teaching the Interprofessional Ethics course this spring as well as working with medical students doing international travel.

Dionne Simmons is not here today as she is attending the first of several Lunch-n-Learn educational programs for kinship caregivers sponsored by the Kinship Caregiver Coalition. The topic of today’s session is depression and medications for children, with presenter Dr. Rick Bowers, an area child psychiatrist.

5. General Questions/Discussion

Mary Ann Drewry – WSU Ellis Institute, SOPP – said the Human Services Levy discretionary grant funding process is underway, with a new process that combines applications for funds from the Montgomery County Frail Elderly Advisory Committee, United Way, and the MC human services levy into one application. Proposals for funding are due March 21. Targeted issues are income, education, and healthy living.

Kate rthat ODJFS and the Ohio Colleges of Medicine Government Resource Center have partnered to make grants available to increase the number of interdisciplinary training programs for psychiatrists. In the Dayton area, the Departments of Community Health, Geriatrics and Psychiatry at the Boonshoft School of Medicine received a grant to get more medical residents trained in both geriatrics and community psychiatry, and to include Community Health Workers on the interdisciplinary care team. One of the foci of this work will be a patient centered medical home for geriatric patients struggling with dementia.

Monica Updike asked how people who are not insured can get into the community health centers. She has several clients who have had trouble obtaining health care. Patty Griswold said that the health centers are accepting new patients but it is first-come, first-served and they typically schedule patients for the month in the beginning of each month, after which patients need to call back the following month to schedule an appointment. The best thing is to call at the beginning of the month when there are the most available appointments. Other CAB members noted what services they can provide specific to the clients’ needs.

6. Future Agendas and Schedules
   Potential speakers for future meetings were identified. They include: Kimberley Freeman, PHDMC, to talk about the community transformation grant awarded to PHDMC, and Michelle Dilts, to talk about United Against Violence Greater Dayton. Anne Finnicum offered to speak about the Healthy U program.
