“Ethical Dilemmas—Recognizing Boundaries”

December 2, 2008
8:30-12:15 noon

Madison Lakes Park Lodge
581 Olive Road
Dayton, Ohio
(Free parking)

Registration and Refreshments at 8:00 a.m

- What is an ethical dilemma?
- When have I crossed the line?
- Am I enabling or empowering?

Objectives

1. Discuss the overarching ethical principles that govern professional relationships.
2. Describe the difference between enabling and empowering clients.
3. Identify ways to maintain professional boundaries in the client relationship.
4. Analyze issues of confidentiality within the federally mandated guidelines of HIPAA.

The primary responsibility of health and social service providers is to promote the well-being of clients. However, there are times when a situation requires that a choice be made between different sets of values whether that of the client, the organization, greater society or the professional worker. This seminar will examine a number of these conflicts and ways to identify, clarify, address and determine appropriate options when facing ethical decisions and problems.
